Banner's Cartage Truck Total Loss—Driver Seriously Burned About the Face and Hands—Short Current Causes Fire—Place of Accident Below Cluny Hill—Passing Truck Brings Victim to Basano Hospital

Henry Williams, driver of Banner's Cartage Co. truck, suffered serious burns about the face and hands last Friday evening when a short circuit in the motor of the truck caused fire and the gas tank under the seat exploded.

Proceeding west along the highway, the truck had just taken the dip going down the Cluny hill when Williams noticed smoke puff out of the motor. Immediately past the bridge flames burst from under the engine and the driver alighted the truck toward the ditch, locked the brakes and jumped from the flaming inferno but not before the gasoline tank exploded, shooting flames all over him.

A passing truck from the west brought the injured man into Basano, where he was attended by Dr. A. G. Scott and Dr. A. Wilson. Williams left for Calgary last Sunday.

The truck and its cargo of gasoline and milk bottles were totally demolished.

Farewells Art Flanagan From Friends in Hussar

HUSSAR, Oct. 23.—Sixty friends of Art Flanagan gathered for a farewell party in his honor in the Aid society, Tuesday evening.

Dancing was enjoyed by the younger set, with music furnished by the local orchestra. The older group amused themselves playing bridge. After lunch, Emerson Brown, master of ceremonies, presented Mr. Flanagan with a purse of silver and a ring, with the best wishes of the community.

Art replied with a happy speech in which he expressed his regret at leaving Hussar, where he had enjoyed his stay so much. Mr. Flanagan has been employed in H. D. Brown's hardware store for over two years, and will be leaving at the end of the month for Basano, where he will be employed in the Auto Camp Garage. He will be greatly missed by his friends here.

Mr. Cain, M.L.A., urged that group committees continue to carry on as a means of contact between the individual and the government. He mentioned the fact that there is much for the Social Creditors to be thankful for, it is necessary for them to have patience and to continue their study.

Mr. Crate, deputy minister of agriculture, spoke briefly on the nature of his work, his pleasure in being there, and his appreciation of the wonderful spirit of the meeting. He gave a tribute to the late Archibald Mitchell, and congratulated the S.C. party on having Mr. Crate as a speaker.

He said that with harmony between leaders and people there was nothing that could not be accomplished. The Hon. A. H. Mitchell applied the same lines of the Social Credit doctrine, and foretold the eventual abolition of taxation and interest, with the desire to "live and let live" the keynote of real living. He said we have a government with a heart at Edmonton now. He hopes to be able to do this with the help of the Social Credit party principles before parliament.

Hon. W. N. Chant, minister of agriculture, spoke of a busy hand on the "spoke" of agricultural problems; advised diversified farming, rotation of crops, and the raising of stock to get the very best out of the products of the soil. He said that unless the government had the machinery to put legislation into effect, legislation is useless; and at present the government is working under the laws of the old party; as soon as new legislation can be made it will be in the hands of the Social Credit party.

At present only the ministers and the premier have the responsibility, later the M.L.A.s will be sharing it.

The board passed a bylaw providing for the cancellation of interest on certain payments made on the due date this autumn.

Where thy smile and thy welcome
O met us of old;

And dwell on the memory of joys

Charlton's Store at Millicent Robbed of $2,000—Thos. Charlton Held Up by Youth Armed With Shot-Gun—Robbery Last Friday Evening—Pair Escape in Car

Royal Canadian Mounted Police under Sergeant C. H. Clarke of Basano are scouring the country for an unknown bandit, who, with a companion, held up and forced Thomas Charlton of Millicent to open his safe and turn the contents amounting to approximately $2,000 over to them. The robbery took place shortly before midnight when Mr. Charlton was returning from a visit with Wm. and Mrs. J. O. Eaton.

He was about to enter his store, also his home, and was wearing a blue overalls. Police held the theory that a companion of the bandit was the driver and that the robber was familiar with the layout of the store, as he had been seen in the store-keeper, as the robbery showed indications of being carefully planned.

It was one of the largest holdups in the history of Alberta for years. Mr. Charlton had accumulated a considerable amount of cash and had intended to bank it in a day or so. He was unable to state the exact amount. In addition to searches made in the Basano district, a close watch is being kept in Calgary by the headquarters detachment.

Mr. Charlton immediately got in touch with the police and furnished a description of the holdup man. He was described as being young of medium height and build, and wearing blue overalls. Police held the theory that a companion of the bandit was the driver and that the robber was familiar with the layout of the store, as he had been seen in the store-keeper, as the robbery showed indications of being carefully planned.

The Relief Expenditure Burden

With the Federal elections over and the political complexion of the next Parliament of Canada defined, the government of the country will be faced with a number of important problems to decide, and not the least of these is the question of the steps which must be taken to ease the debt burden of governmental units in Western Canada.

By governmental units is meant the governments of the provinces and of the municipalities, urban and rural.

During the past five years the public finances of the Western Canadian provinces and of the municipalities, which are their creature, have been strained to the breaking point to meet the problems which drought and general unemployment have brought in their train.

Not only has the public purse of the Western provinces and of the municipalities been depleted in the struggle to ensure that their citizens should not starve, freeze or go shelterless in their grim fight against great odds, but they have been obliged to pledge their future resources, to an alarming extent, to enable the citizens of the present generation to keep their heads above water.

In the three prairie provinces millions of dollars have been spent to furnish a substantial percentage of the population with food, fuel and clothing, and in the urban centres with shelter as well, and this, despite the fact that the Federal government has also contributed large sums to bolster up the provinces and the municipalities in their fight to ensure the necessities of life for their people.

In addition, however, to the money which has been expended out of current revenues these provincial and municipal governments have pledged many more millions of dollars against the credit of the future earnings power of the people, a debt which will have to be liquidated in the future either by the taxpayers of to-day or by the rising generation, or a combination of both.

Without going into statistics which, at the best, make dry reading, it is axiomatic to say that the indebtedness which has been piled up on the part, directly and indirectly, reaches a staggering total and has passed the figure which is within the competence of these governmental units to meet from existing resources.

One of the conditions contributing to the existing condition of the finances of the Western provinces and municipalities is the inequity of the distribution of the tax burden as between individual taxpayers and the inequity of the distribution of the taxes of taxation as between the federal, provincial and municipal governing entities.

The financial situation which has developed as a result of these inequities is one which will have to be faced and remedied by the newly-elected Parliament if the Western provinces and municipalities are to remain solvent and are to be enabled to extricate themselves from a position which has become intolerable.

So far as the municipal governments are concerned, their financial plight has been accentuated by practical inability to really set at least the principal tax base, and this applies to both rural and urban, only in different degree. Land has more than passed the limit of its endurance as a source of revenue for governments. Other spheres of taxation are denied to the municipalities and this is one discriminatory feature which will have to be remedied.

In seeking additional sources of revenue municipalities are cramped by legislative action of the superior provinces and the provinces in turn are hampered by Federal authority.

What is needed is a national-wide conference in which the municipalities can get together with the provinces and the Dominion and, in a spirit of tolerance and recognition of the difficulties of one another, come to an agreement which will provide for specific delimitation of spheres of taxation and a definite understanding that the several governmental units will not in future encroach upon another's taxation prerogative.

This understanding should be translated into legislative enactment and if it involves amendments to the British North America Act, as undoubtedly it would, efforts should be made to secure the necessary sanction.

The problem of relief, it has been reiterated, is a complicated one, and time and again, is a national one. The provinces have said so. The urban municipalities have said so and the rural municipalities hold the same view, even if they have not adopted resolutions in convention to that effect.

If the Federal government is not prepared to meet the situation in the west as a national problem, the only alternative for the Federal government to make it possible for the provinces and municipalities to liquidate past, present and future expenditures by providing them with the machinery to levy the money which is available.

Norway Has Quier Tax

"Sparrow tax" is a levy most annoying to the farmers of Jakkviken, Norway, and is one of the most unusual in Europe. For prayers offered up by the pastor of the Sykkiken Church at Bergen against crop-raiding by the birds, each farmer must pay 30 kroner annually, or about $7.50. The tillers of the soil say that they receive little for their money, since the sparrows continue to attack the harvests.

One hundred sixty-six thousand acres of land were set aside by China for an experiment in raising cotton from American cotton seed.

Beauty Is Old London

Old St. Paul's, perched high on Ludgate Hill, once a commanding position, is being gradually crowded out by other buildings. The most impressive sight of Wren's venerable cathedral is that looking from Fleet street up Ludgate Hill. I have heard jaded newspaper men, familiar with Fleet street at all hours of the day and night, grow lyrical about the loveliness of that glimpse of St. Paul's at dawn.

A great white London seems to have sprung up like magic. But it has not obliterated the past, and one of the charms of a walk through the city is the unexpected glimpse one gets through its narrow courts and alleys of old taverns, little shops and tiled churches that have about unchanged through the centuries.

It has been said that one cannot walk a hundred yards in London without seeing a bunch of trees. That is almost completely true. In fact there are enough trees in the London streets and squares to make up, if placed together, a very respectable forest. Who has ever noted that there are over seventy trees in the Strand?

But nothing excuses the river views. Wherever one looks, or from whatever angle of the seven great bridges from Tower to Lambeth, there is picture after picture of infinite variety and beauty. At night, when the Embankment sparkles with its thousand lights, the view from the bridges of London's curving waterfront has the quality of pure magic. What a picture could one do if justice. — Overseas Daily Mail.

Making An Empire

Britain Did Not Accomplish It By Force Of Arms

Signor Mussolini adroitly sought to weaken the influence of British efforts to assist with these words: "My only desire is to serve my country as did the great Englishmen who preceded me up the centuries. But the great Englishmen, lacking war planes and poison gas, went into the unknown lands, not in vast numbers, but in small parties. Once a few of them came to Australia with a man named James Cook. They did not blow the aborigines to pieces with cannon, but found a continent which opposed to face a few pellets into the legs of a hostile nation. That was the invasion of Australia. It was hardly described as a conquest by force of arms. True, here and there in the Empire there has been fighting, and in the dark past deeds have been done which people of British blood would not dream of doing today; but it is to the solitary explorer and to little bands of explorers that the making of Empire must be credited. — Melbourne Australian.

Serum For Paralysis

Demonstration Is Made Of New Treatment For Dread Disease

A serum he said was as positive effective in the treatment of infantile paralysis as the serum widely used in treating diphtheria was demonstrated by Dr. E. C. Rosenow of the Mayo Foundation, University of Minnesota, before members of the Kentucky State Medical Association. The serum, Dr. Rosenow told the assembled physicians and surgeons, is the result of 19 years of experimentation and while it does not completely solve the problem it is effective when used within 48 hours after the disease is contracted. Within that period it is as effective and positive as the serum used for diphtheria. Dr. Rosenow said.

Dr. A. T. McCormack, secretary of the Kentucky state board of health, said the demonstration made by Dr. Rosenow was "pretty conclusive."

Arabs Find New Work

Motor Car Has Changed History Of The Bedouins

The London Sunday Express says the Bedouins in Arabia have been, from time immemorial, lived by transporting goods across the desert on their camels. To-day the motor car is displacing the camel as the ship of the desert. So the Bedouins are seeking a new livelihood. In the Arab kingdom they have begun to grow corn where there never grew before. They are settling down and building cities for the first time. The motor car is changing the map of the world. It is changing the history of the peoples.

FASHION FANCIES

What a lovely feeling getting into a new woolen dress on crisp fall days. This season they seem to be smarter than ever.

To-day's mode is a charming style of dress, fuller figure, for it is slenderizing qualities with V's-neck, jabot collar and has bias seams across the hips.

The original was in dark plum litewool, matching the matching tons lustrous satin collar.

The two surfaces of black satin black crepe would work out beautifully in this easily made model.

Black woolen-like crepe with white satin collar is also a very smart scheme for it.

Style No. 448 is designed for size 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48-inches bust. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 36-inch material with 3/4 yard of 36-inch contrasting for three quarter sleeve dress.

Tokio Subway Ultra-Modern

Goes One Better Than Those Of Other World Cities

According to passengers recently returned to Seattle, Wash., on the President Jefferson, Tokyo's subway combines the best features of the New York sub, the Paris metro, and the London tube, with a few added innovations of its own. Coins in the slot machines are magnified, so that they do not start spurious money. While enamel straps snap back into place where not in use. Automatic doors have soft edges which may bump but not near the slightly tardy passenger. Cars carrying 200 passengers leave a station every three minutes.

Rear Admiral Byrd Says Dominion Pilots Best For Arctic Exploration

A tribute to Canada's north country flyers was paid at Toronto by Rear-Admiral Byrd, famous United States Antarctic explorer. Replying to Mayor Simpson's welcome at a luncheon reception outside of city hall, Admiral Byrd said Canadians knew more of polar flying than any other pilots. Long experience flying over snow and ice and in sub-zero weather made them excellent pilots for Arctic or Antarctic expeditions, he said.

Strange City In Arabia

Streets Of Lamu Lined With Ruins Of Many Palaces

Lamu, an ancient Arabian city of mystery, is built on a little island not far from Mombasa, in the Kenya Colony. The streets of this strange municipality, which are so narrow that the sun scarcely even shines in them, are lined with the ruins of many palaces. The inhabitants of Lamu are descendants of the old Persians who founded a colony on the island about A.D. 700, said to be very proud of their aristocratic origin and traditions, for more than a thousand years ago their ancestors had produced great poets, architects and jewellers. The population makes a living by cultivating coco-palms, by fishing and collecting ambergris.

A Rainbow Snow Storm

Beautiful Layers Of Varied Colors Felt On The Australian Alps

Colored snow fell on the Australian Alps for the second time this winter. It changed the landscape around Kosciusko Heights from white to chocolate within a few hours, while at Mt. Buller the inhabitants woke to see a bright red layer on the snow, half an inch deep. By noon heavy snows had blotted out the red layer. The most remarkable fall was at St. Bernard's Hospice, where pink snow fell in two layers, an inch and a half thick, with a 6-inch strip glittering white snow sandwiched in between.

HEADACHES FOR RULERS

The federal cabinet ministers as announced by Premier Mackenzie King is a strong one. Any group that includes C. H. Dunning, W. D. Euler, C. D. Howe, Ernest Lapointe and J. E. Elliott cannot be termed a weak cabinet by any means. Yes, the cabinet is a strong one and it needs to be with the problems awaiting solution in Canada today.

The railway problem is the weightiest of all by far. A million dollars a week is the tidy sum that the ten million people in Canada have to supply to keep the Canadian National Railway operating. That is a terrific drain on even as rich a country as this Dominion.

The wheat marketing problem, the financing of the western provinces, the aiding of the maritimes, the tremendous pressure of relief, the need to increase exports and the problem of keeping the Dominion itself on a level financial footing—all these are sobering matters that must be dealt with. The new government has greater responsibilities than any new administration ever encountered on assuming power in Canada.

The one encouraging feature is that times are getting better throughout the world. There has been a distinct improvement in many countries. But the upward movement is not very robust as yet and it will be a long time before there is anything like the busy and prosperous times of the 1925-28 period.

Before next winter is over the members of the new cabinet will likely have added a few more grey hairs and a few more wrinkles. "Uneasy lies the head which wears a crown."

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED

Big Business has been condemned and maligned but it has discovered some secrets of success in the long period of ascendancy that stand it in good stead. One of these secrets, so-called, is to take the long view.

The little fellow plunges in and out, gets enthused and then careless and uninterested. But the big fellow looked away ahead, plans accordingly and sticks like a leech to his program and his vision. The very tenacity of purposes exhibited encourages success.

There is a moral in this for the settlers on the Eastern Irrigation project. Success can only be obtained by following the path laid down by successful enterprises.

The Swedes are about the most successful co-operators in continental Europe (despite the credit and advertising given the industrial Danes.) The Swedish people had patience and keen observation. They waited five years before launching their first big undertaking, towards the end of the last century. They moved slowly, cautiously, step by step. Now their organizations are unshakable.

THE HUNTING SEASON

Wild game is in the sloughs and lakes, the wooded thickets by the rivers' sides, and in the fields of russet stubble. Partridge, prairie chicken, geese and ducks are facing the annual warfare waged against them by mankind. Favorite rendezvous are lurking places for hunters from far and near and gun shots are frequent reminders of the "open season."

Alberta has plenty of wild fowl in spite of the execution wrought by hunters from the nesting places in the north to the Gulf of Mexico in the south. Only in favored places is the fill filled, these autumn days, with the whirr and flutter of legions of pinions, as was a common sight all over rural Alberta in pioneer days.

The great Canada grey geese are herabouts, too, the Zeppelins of bird game life, suspicious, shy and foxy, but my what a luscious meat! With their slate grey feathers and black heads the "Canadas" are a splendid sight as they take the air in echeloned ranks.

The zipping Hungarian partridges have supplanted the prairie chicken whose whirring but slower flight used to resound through the meagre brush and across open prairie land. The chicken are on their way to extinction but not the cocky little immigrants from Hungary, whose speed, cunning ways, and ability in camouflaging themselves in the grain stubble, disappointed many a bloodstained hunter.

Alberta is not the "prairie paradise" it was a couple of decades ago but it is still wild life in abundance, particularly in game birds. An intelligent conservation policy, effectively enforced, would provide abundant hunting for all sportsmen, preserve plenty of game and attract visitors from many parts of America to the province by the foothills.

REWARDS OF COURAGE SURE

Fear has ridden mankind like a pestilential hag ever since our primitive ancestors took to the trees and caves to escape the menace of the beasts of the jungles.

Consequently courage has always been prized among human beings. The brave have been admired and followed. The craven and faint-hearted have been despised and forsaken.

Abraham Lincoln was fond of telling the story of a young recruit on his first march to battle in the United States Civil War. The lad felt his knees shaking violently, looked down upon them and said: "Shake away old knees, I'm going to take you to lots worse places than this!"

A great English statesman, one of her most powerful, effective and convincing orators, on being asked if he approached a debate with a complete sense of assurance, said: "That day when my knees do not tremble when I rise to speak, that day do I cease to speak."

There lies the very essence of courage. A reverent fear that one may fall short of his best efforts is the most effective stimulus to greater zeal and greater achievement.

We may have to move with caution and even tentatively these days but the rewards of real intelligent courage are as sure as the rising of the sun.

"Stand up to life! What if the times are ill?"

Men can repair their fortunes if they will. Mourn not so bitterly an empty purse.

To have an empty hand and mind is worse. The easy, fouring danger, to take flight. The brave man chooses still to stay and fight."

VAST FIGURES

Mighty Betelgeux, largest known star, flares in the interstellar spaces and human beings on the earth look upon it as a point of light.

Yet if Betelgeux was to replace our sun its circumference would extend beyond the vast area traversed by the earth in its annual orbit.

Comparing sizes, the earth would represent a dot over an i while Betelgeux would be larger than a three storey house.

Light travels at 186,000 miles a second, yet a beam from the farthest star discernible in the largest telescope takes 140 million years to reach this planet.

"When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy Hands,

And the moon and the stars which Thou has ordained,

What is man that Thou art mindful of him, Or the son of man, that Thou visitest him."

VAGARIES OF GENIUS

Nothing is quite so mysterious as the workings of the human mind. A study of men classed as geniuses generally shows them to be a little "cracked" in certain respects. Some times their peculiarities have been harmless, in others they have led to positive insanity. A few examples will illustrate.

Napoleon was afraid of a cat; Peter the Great was afraid to cross a bridge; Martin Luther imagined that the devil appeared to him and he threw his ink bottle at the fiend; Samuel Johnson, Beethoven and Lincoln at times contemplated suicide.

Among the ridiculous antics of great men may be mentioned the occasional habit of Cardinal Richelieu to gallop around a billiard table, imagining himself to be a horse. Adam Smith, the great economist, once walked 12 miles to church, clad only in his nightshirt. Bentham, the philosopher, went baredheaded in winter and wore heavy leather gloves in summer. Many men of genius have been shockingly lax in morals as measured by adopted standards.

Bassano people can rest assured that all this does not mean, however, that being a bit nutty is an infallible sign of genius.

Big Catch

Sami and Mose went fishing one day and Mose hooked a big catfish that pulled him overboard. As he crawled back into the boat, he said to Sam:

"Hyar's what Ah wanta know—is dis hyar nigger fishin' or is dis hyar fish niggerin'?"

Ten Minutes with the Scotch Philosopher

A little item in the daily press recently attracted the attention of the writer. It revealed that French scientists were proceeding to the remote Isle of St. Helena, for the purpose of destroying the white ants which are threatening to wreck the humble abode where Napoleon died an exile.

It revealed one dark, stormy day in the long ago when we stood, hat in hand, in the almost bare apartment, once occupied by the man of destiny. It was indeed a poor place for one possessed of such a poor spirit, and no wonder he loved to wander in the garden with his devoted companions, there to fight, over and over again, his most brilliant campaigns. With the approach of night, however, his thoughts turned to other subjects, making him appear a frail and unhappy human being.

It was then he would show the remorse he felt for his conduct to the faithful Josephine. Remembrance of Bernadotte and Grouchy and what he deemed their treachery and ingratitude, would cause him to rave like a madman, while the stern punishment meted out to him by the English, frequently led to bitter tears.

The many years, it can be generally believed that his death was brought about by cancer, but modern doctors who have had access to the records preserved put the true cause as starvation of the stomach.

In any case, Napoleon's remarkable career should remind over-ambitious men of every race and clime of the everlasting truth contained in Gray's Elegy:

"The path of Glory lead but to the grave."

Addressing the American Medical Association the other day, Dr. Mayo, head of the famous Rochester Clinic, stated that, within five years, a serum capable of curing insanity would be available.

Just think what a boon this would be to the world at large.

It would mean the abolishment of great institutions which annually cost huge sums of money to maintain, instantly reduce in a very substantial way, the percentage of major crimes and, above all, restore to normal state of mind and balance the countless unfortunates who suffer from the dread affliction.

Practically speaking, it is only in recent years that so-called civilized nations have done anything to help the insane. Up to the middle of the 19th century, mentally unbalanced were frequently held to be acursed and, in consequence, suffered fearful indignities at the hands of the brutal and superstitious populace. In certain far eastern countries, individuals of this time are regarded as having received the favor of the Deity, and it is amazing to witness the respect bestowed upon them as they journey along.

Surely this is a strange belief to entertain, but few will seek to deny its benevolent nature.

At the moment of writing, the campaign of abuse and slander which the government controlled press of Italy has waged against the Motherland seems to have reached the limit.

Doubtless acting as the mouthpiece of Il Duce, one newspaper man told his numerous readers that unless Benito proceeded to act in a more humble fashion in the near future, his country would engage and defeat her.

More than likely the statement was made for a double purpose—to keep the warlike spirit of Italians at boiling point, and impress the outside world on the determination of Mussolini to carry out the Ethiopian campaign regardless of others.

Italians can think what they want to on the subject, but all those who have followed Italian history for many centuries must have received the vain glorious utterance as a pitiful gust. For, except on a very few occasions when fortune aided them, the achievements of Italian fighting men have been of a most pitiful kind.

Inspire fear in the breasts of possible opponents. Meanwhile, the peace and progress of the whole world is at stake.

A war between Italy and Britain would lead to many startling events. Germany would not miss the opportunity of pouncing on Austria; and France and the various ententes, large and small, would instantly mobilize and, once again, the whole earth would be drenched with human gore.

The immediate consequences would put an end to Italy's dream of African conquest. No longer could her tought to the tune of a hickory stick, was once sufficient foundation for an education or special career.

The pioneers did much for this country on just such a foundation. However, there was much they didn't do—couldn't do with such an education. As people congested in cities it took more education to plan sewer systems, engineer water works and fight contagious diseases. Yellow fever was not banished by a man with a three R education, nor was the Brooklyn bridge built on such training.

In days of the three R's businesses were run differently and folks had a different attitude toward them. There wasn't much going on to entertain people or distract their attention. It was a treat just to "go down town and look around". Topics of conversation were limited and more time was given to neighborly discussion of new things seen in the local stores.

Today talk covers many lively subjects.

If a merchant wants his goods and service talked about he must set the example and emphasize the good points and popularize them. Trial and error have proven that this can best be done locally to the advantage of both buyer and seller through the medium of the newspaper.

We serve the buyers and sellers of merchandise in Bassano as a modern, effective information dispensing medium.

WISECRACK

Pardon us for reminding you of Halloween, but it comes upon us all next Thursday night. Modern plumbing has robbed this celebration of many of its excitements and charms, and as far as we're concerned it could be well forgotten and wiped off the calendar.—The Clarendon Local Press.

The Difference

"Did you enjoy your dinner, air?" asked the solicitous restaurant proprietor.

"Yes, except the dessert. That was terrible."

"Did you have plum, tart or lemon pie?"

"I don't know. It tasted like blue."

"Ah! It was the plum tart. The lemon pie tastes like blue."

Signor Mussolini may be a great gambler, but if he is trying to run a bluff on old John Bull, he is apt to be rather and when the showdown is made.

E.G. ALBERTA

To the Editor of Labor:

The workers are missing their best bet in their indifference and hostility to the church. The church is an excellent medium for the forming of public opinion. Most ministers are socially minded, but the pews are filled with conservatism.

The minister emphasizes the social gospel and is met with stony silence. Where are the workers to back him up?

In a village where I was located some years ago, the machinists went on strike against the "yellow dog" contract. I was the only minister in town who backed the strikers. Result: I lost three excellent paying members and not a single worker came to my support.

The newspapers are closed to the workers—they are controlled by the big advertisers. The radio is closed to the workers—it takes money to sponsor a program.

The church is capable of becoming the ally of the workers, but most churches are governed by a majority vote. Let the workers seek out the socially liberal minister—back him with their presence and they will be surprised at the added strength they will receive.

The Case for Italy

The Case for Italy, in our opinion, is the least popular of all. We do not necessarily subscribe to the sentiments of this article and we leave you to judge it on its merits. In all fairness, however, we feel we must allude to the apparent dispute, a good example of which was the interview in Geneva with the Italian ambassador, Signor A. Rocco, Italian ambassador to the United States, who is represented the case for his country, and released by the Royal Consulate General of Italy in Canada.

I feel, said Signor Rocco, that the Italian position in the Ethiopian affair is not sufficiently known in this country. I venture to suggest that the Canadian public generally has formed its own opinion on the basis of fragmentary, and sometimes misleading information. This may be said a part of the picture but it is not the complete picture. More often than not it is a distortion of historical facts and present motives.

This could not be construed as criticism because I am the first to admit that we are partially responsible for this situation. I am afraid that we have been somewhat unimpartial, I do not say of public opinion, but of the machinery through which public opinion is made and moulded. We were convinced and remain convinced of the basic justice of our case, and that conviction led us, perhaps, to pay insufficient heed to the arguments by which world opinion may be influenced. We have, therefore, done little to present our case in its full light. We have ignored certain methods of appealing to public imagination, of exploiting popular feeling.

Our sincerity has been interpreted as weakness, our realism has been mistaken for cynicism; and this false view of my country's attitude has been willingly spread by those eager to extract any spurious advantage from systematic misrepresentation. And what I mean by misrepresentation is not solely confined to the manufacture of apocryphal reports about air attacks upon imaginary hospitals and of the use of poisonous gas.

The Accusations. First, we are accused of engaging in a war for war's sake, for lust of power and military glory.

To those who entertain that idea, I wish simply say that they do not know the real Italy, that they do not know Mussolini.

When Mussolini sent our young men to Africa, it was because Italy has there a problem of life and security which must be solved; it was because, as all other methods having failed, the inevitable forces of history—or reality—permitted no other solution. And the youth of Italy reply to critics, who demand that they should not fight, because they are not yet adults. Why? Because they feel—as the whole nation feels—that the vital interests of the country need to be defended. You may disagree with that assumption, but that is the unanimous and deep-seated conviction of the people of Italy. And it means that not the Italian Government alone, but 41 million Italians are mistaken.

Those are those who contend that in resorting to arms to protect her rights and interests in Africa, Italy has violated her international obligations under the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pact.

Now, let me remind you that Ethiopia's sovereignty of our policy is proved by the fact that Italy supports the admission of Ethiopia into the League of Nations. This was in 1931, and it is under the Mussolini regime that Italy has been the most ardent and sincere supporter of the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pact.

These conditions have never been fulfilled. Two million slaves are still to be found in Ethiopia and slavery continues to be one of the chief sources of trade. The country is still under feudal regime. The central government does not control most of the territory, much less administer it.

Two darkies were talking about the depression. "Boy," said one, "I wonder what you do if you had all the money in the world right now?" "Well, uh," replied the other, "Ah reckon ah'd pay hit on mah debter—on ah'd wud pay hit on."

These are facts, not opinions, and they have been implicitly acknowledged only recently by the League of Nations.

The social, economic and political conditions in Ethiopia have been described by Italy in a series of detailed documents submitted to the League; and it has been demonstrated through Ethiopia either cannot, or will not meet the requirements of a law-abiding, civilized and responsible State. Italy declines to treat Italy by the League or by anyone as the equal, in respect to controversies over international rights and duties.

Italy declines to treat Italy by the League or by anyone as the equal, in respect to controversies over international rights and duties. Italy declines to treat Italy by the League or by anyone as the equal, in respect to controversies over international rights and duties.

In pronouncing a verdict against Italy, the League of Nations has applied the letter of the law, not the spirit.

We object to such a sentence. Evidently it is not based on the facts and the merits. We feel very strongly that the arguments treated against us were framed in the spirit of legalism rather than in an earnest desire to seek out the truth and give justice. We feel also that the League continues to be solely concerned with the peace of war, not with removing the cause of war.

As to the Kellogg Pact, I will reiterate that it was approved by the League of Nations in 1928, giving them freedom of action in certain regions where they had a permanent interest—an interest in their security, and any reservation made by one signatory to the Pact is automatically excluded from its operation. This is a major point which most people overlook.

The Aggressor? Italy has been called the aggressor. Italy has been suspected of stirring up unrest on the border, of staging the incident of Ubal, in order to justify an invasion. I put these things very bluntly because it is no mind ailing all the incidents which have been made or implied against my country.

I do not have to answer this last accusation. It is answered by the incontrovertible history of the relations between Italy and Ethiopia from 1889 to 1935: from the Treaty of Ubal which gave Italy, already some forty years ago, a kind of protectorate over Abyssinia.

The Treaty of Friendship of 1925 by which Italy showed an earnest desire to pursue a policy of good neighborliness with Abyssinia, and a economic development of that part of the world. And then there was the last period, when the Italian armaments of Ethiopia culminated in a long series of acts of violence and armed incursions on the territories of our neighboring colonies.

It is under the Mussolini regime that Italy has been the most ardent and sincere supporter of the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pact.

Now, let me remind you that Ethiopia's sovereignty of our policy is proved by the fact that Italy supports the admission of Ethiopia into the League of Nations. This is a major point which most people overlook.

Italy has been called the aggressor. Italy has been suspected of stirring up unrest on the border, of staging the incident of Ubal, in order to justify an invasion. I put these things very bluntly because it is no mind ailing all the incidents which have been made or implied against my country.

I do not have to answer this last accusation. It is answered by the incontrovertible history of the relations between Italy and Ethiopia from 1889 to 1935: from the Treaty of Ubal which gave Italy, already some forty years ago, a kind of protectorate over Abyssinia.

The Treaty of Friendship of 1925 by which Italy showed an earnest desire to pursue a policy of good neighborliness with Abyssinia, and a economic development of that part of the world. And then there was the last period, when the Italian armaments of Ethiopia culminated in a long series of acts of violence and armed incursions on the territories of our neighboring colonies.

It is under the Mussolini regime that Italy has been the most ardent and sincere supporter of the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pact.

Now, let me remind you that Ethiopia's sovereignty of our policy is proved by the fact that Italy supports the admission of Ethiopia into the League of Nations. This was in 1931, and it is under the Mussolini regime that Italy has been the most ardent and sincere supporter of the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pact.

These conditions have never been fulfilled. Two million slaves are still to be found in Ethiopia and slavery continues to be one of the chief sources of trade. The country is still under feudal regime. The central government does not control most of the territory, much less administer it.

Two darkies were talking about the depression. "Boy," said one, "I wonder what you do if you had all the money in the world right now?" "Well, uh," replied the other, "Ah reckon ah'd pay hit on mah debter—on ah'd wud pay hit on."

These are facts, not opinions, and they have been implicitly acknowledged only recently by the League of Nations.

The social, economic and political conditions in Ethiopia have been described by Italy in a series of detailed documents submitted to the League; and it has been demonstrated through Ethiopia either cannot, or will not meet the requirements of a law-abiding, civilized and responsible State. Italy declines to treat Italy by the League or by anyone as the equal, in respect to controversies over international rights and duties.

In pronouncing a verdict against Italy, the League of Nations has applied the letter of the law, not the spirit.

We object to such a sentence. Evidently it is not based on the facts and the merits. We feel very strongly that the arguments treated against us were framed in the spirit of legalism rather than in an earnest desire to seek out the truth and give justice. We feel also that the League continues to be solely concerned with the peace of war, not with removing the cause of war.

As to the Kellogg Pact, I will reiterate that it was approved by the League of Nations in 1928, giving them freedom of action in certain regions where they had a permanent interest—an interest in their security, and any reservation made by one signatory to the Pact is automatically excluded from its operation. This is a major point which most people overlook.

The Aggressor? Italy has been called the aggressor. Italy has been suspected of stirring up unrest on the border, of staging the incident of Ubal, in order to justify an invasion. I put these things very bluntly because it is no mind ailing all the incidents which have been made or implied against my country.

When I enter a store, Many clicks on the floor. None I really ever forget. I once called it a house. I never met the style. I've never forgotten her yet.

As I frequent the banks, Where I get little thanks, Lack of claims I never forget. Though I must not add smile, I never met the style. I've never forgotten her yet.

But I make many friends, For my future depends, On those that I never forget. If my good nature leads, Friendship, till my life ends, That quality I'll never regret.

Even when just a boy, And my mother's great joy, When I equipt in my little cot, As she nursed me with joy, I would never destroy, That virtue I never forget.

Even up to this day, As my dear friends all say, I am filled with humor and wit, For I never could close, My mouth to never forget.

With my memory afford, I could not well afford, To sacrifice this, my great pet, For I never could close, My mouth to never forget.

So I journey along, As each day I grow strong, In my memory so clear and bright, I'll recall life's sweet song, Not forget aught for wrong, Till I'm called by death from life's fight.

—J.A.W. Martin, 520-21 Ave. W., Calgary.

Heard 'n' Seen

We weren't sure that Chas. Wilson was the man to report this column until we heard a couple jokes told by him 'other day. Now we are positive he won't do. Lloyd Jackson and Frank Gayford had a nice jangle back from Telmand's, so we are given to understand. That the Makepeace girl wants to be the first of the feminine sex to be mentioned in this column. After a checkup of our files we find that three ladies who sat on the post office steps one day were the first. 'It too bad'. Joe Chabot refusing to make apologies to 'The Mail. No one isn't black. Shorty, Joe, Roy C. and Roy L. cooking up a plot at dinner in a local restaurant. Wallace Flanagan having difficulty shovelling snow off the sidewalk until a stalwart came along and helped him out.

Flash from our juvenile correspondent, Lorna MacLean and Margaret Flanagan want to leave Bassano. (Guess they had to say something). D. C. Portney is immune to our comments on him as he has deserted Makepeace and moved to Calgary. Dr. Scott and Barlow bagging a goodly number of wolf hides when shooting during the birdland Monday. Anyway, the cold weather stimulates one business in town. We understand Slater Murphy was not sorry to see Harry Holmes leave Husar. Dr. Scott's the latter's fitness work. We won't mention anything about Sandy and Alf going out in the blizzard on Monday for ducks and not getting any; nor will we mention how they got stuck in snow drifts three times and eventually came back with one party. We don't say a word about it because the reporter was with them.

Stephen Johnson of Wynne was in Bassano district during the 'week' getting in a little shooting.

Donald MacGregor, who is teaching school at Pandora, was in Bassano over the week-end.

Ralph Armstrong of the Alberta Wheat Pool was in Husar one of the week in connection with the closing of the local elevator here.

L. N. Whitcomb and E. G. Callbeck were in Husar last Thursday evening to put on a movie play, "Miss Marner", and lantern slides on Pandar Italy for the benefit of the school students.

Art Flanagan, who had been employed in H. D. Brown's store in Husar for the past two years, will take the post-in to the Auto Camp Garage, which will be vacated by Bob MacGregor at the end of the month.

Joe Harr's moved the household effects of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Portney to Calgary this week. Mr. Portney does not know definitely if he will remain permanently in Calgary or not.

Harry Holmes, Larry Edwards and Chas. Wilson have completed the addition to the North Star Furriers Station in Brooks. They consider themselves fortunate in finishing the job before the present cold spell.

The Alberta Wheat Pool elevator in Bassano closed down for the winter on Tuesday of this week. It will reopen next summer. It is understood. Stewart Edle of Dairo, who has been in charge of the house, has left for his home.

Robert MacGregor, who has been employed for the past few years at the Auto Camp Garage, intends to leave Bassano this week-end to join his parents, who recently moved to Edmonton. Here's success to you, Bob.

Calgary was a great attraction over the week-end for a large number of Bassano people. Included among those who made the trip are Mrs. W. Flanagan, Mrs. A. G. Scott, Mrs. J. Stiles, Mrs. C. Hopkins, Mrs. J. T. Fraser, Mrs. L. Newby, Mrs. G. Ugarian, Mrs. J. R. Clark, Miss V. McConnel, A. J. Bartlett, Young Slugg and the staff of ye private shoppe.

Jason Bell and Gordon LeGrandeur motored to Rocky Mountain House on Sunday.

FILLER

"The Englishman loves his beer and his Bible; the Scotsman keeps the Sabbath and everything he can lay his hands on; the Irishman does not know what he wants and will be happy until he gets it; the Welshman prays on his knees on Sunday and on every one else for the rest of the week."

Gem

GEM, Oct. 29.—W. C. England, principal of the Gem school, gave a party for the high school students, teachers and their friends on Friday night. Leston, was played until 11. First prizes were won by Miss C. Hanna and Paul Chamberlin. Consoling prize went to Miss Barbara Spark and Douglas Barger. A ghost story told by the host, lunch, games and dancing completed the evening's entertainment.

P. L. Miller, W. Kohlmeier, Miss Evelyn Ferguson and Miss Luella Pollock were visitors at the Bassano dance on Friday night.

A large crowd attended the meeting at the school house on Saturday night when Mr. Gray addressed them on matters concerning the E.I.D.

P. L. Miller and W. Kohlmeier of San Francisco, who were visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Miller, during the past week, left on Saturday to return home via Calgary and Denver.
